New Ambulance Used For Mock Rescue Staging

By GREGORY MCMORROW

UCSB paramedics staged a mock rescue operation to demonstrate the state-of-the-art capabilities of their new ambulance and its contribution to the UCSB paramedic rescue program Saturday afternoon in Vista County's Neighborhood Watch Day demonstration.

The new ambulance, which cost $31,000 and will go into service in July, is custom-made for UCSB and is designed to provide advanced care emergency medicine to the university and Isla Vista community. The money for the ambulance came from the paramedic and rescue program's budget.

The simulated rescue was one of several demonstrations and exhibits staged by police and fire departments, which included presentations by Santa Barbara County Search and Rescue and a display of military hardware by Vandenberg Air Force Base.

UCLA's "med-vac" helicopter participated in the rescue simulation, which saw an accident victim was treated by UCSB paramedics and was then evacuated by the helicopter to a nearby hospital.

The UCLA helicopter, which was recently purchased by UCLA's medical center, is similar to a flying hospital and can be used to evacuate a victim from Santa Barbara hospital in little more than an hour. UCSB Paramedic Supervisor Bruce Lee said.

UCSB is currently the only University of California campus which has a paramedic rescue program, and the addition of the new ambulance will make it the "best equipped paramedic unit in the county," Lee said.

A defibrillator, which is used to pump life force back into the body of cardiac arrest victims, and a radiophone have been purchased with a special grant of $13,000 from student registration fees and will be installed in the ambulance along with other medical equipment. A special pediatric transport box containing child-size medical equipment and drug doses will also be installed to provide assistance to the high school population living in L.V. and married student housing.

Another special feature of the UCSB ambulance is the interior cabintes which have been constructed to provide "hands-reach" access to equipment. (Please turn to pg.12, ed.1)

Capps Elected CCH Chair, Wants Humanities Revival

By GINA GLENNON

Elected as the new chair of the California Council for the Humanities, UCSB Religious Studies Professor Walter H. Capps plans toward a "revival of the humanities." He said the new position will enable him "to establish contact with other people, both in and out of the academic field."

The council consists of 25 very resourceful members, including university presidents and bankers, Capps explained. "It's representative of the population of California in that it includes minorities, and has a good balance of men and women in academia and non-academia fields."

The council supports and awards grants to individual agencies with projects in the humanities notifying people of their various problems, is called "Morning watch." After breakfast each morning the campers assemble into groups to listen to readings and discussions led by the counselor-in-charge.

Morning watch is important to show the children that we are all in this world together and that we must learn to respect one another, Wood said.

Even though the Bible is often considered a "common denominator" and is the "constitution" of the USA, it is often not included in religious education programs, Wood said. The Bible is also "a source of regular worship," he said, and said the camp is a church in its own right and not a denomination of Christian creed, in that it doesn't have a "specific order of worship."

According to Senior Counselor Loretta Wood, "The campers are encouraged to pray for whomever they please. We are all members of the church and not specifically Christian."
hobinners

World

Protest in Poland

In Gdansk, Poland, riot police beatdemonstrators over with powerful jets from water cannon, laid down to sown chaos, today these represent only a...
Harlan Ellison, science fiction author and screenwriter, presented his views on American society through humorous personal anecdotes last Thursday in the Edwin Corle Memorial Lecture.

"I've made two mistakes in my life," Ellison said. "The larger of the two was being a guest on The Merv Griffin Show. Talking to Merv Griffin is like talking to your arm pit."

A great deal of Ellison's lecture was punctuated by such comedy, that either made fun of himself or of life in general. According to Ellison, the prototype of the reader of his works is a "six-foot man with a prominent adams apple and wearing a Wookie mask."

Ellison spoke humorously as he related one of his lecturing experiences in Ohio. "Some of my lectures produce very strange happenings," he said. "In Whitenberg, Ohio, a town that is familiarly known as the buckle on the bible belt, I warned them not to get me on the subject of religion and we could all stay friends."

"Unfortunately, there was a member in the crowd who got me on the subject of religion, at which point a woman in the balcony with a natural leaped up, screaming 'You're the anti-Christ' and set her hair on fire," he said.

The tone of Ellison's lecture became more serious when an audience member mentioned that Ellison had written 30 years ago about "making revolution" and asked "where is the revolution now?"

"Ellison replied that "Spino (and Nix) put in a lot of heavy-duty time and made a lot of appointments to the Supreme Court trying to stifle dissent in this country, and they succeeded. Not in their lifetimes, but the legacy they left behind is on what's been taken up by others, Mr. Reagan principally," Ellison said.

Ellison believes that "there is no movement anymore. Don't forget the ERA was defeated. When you ask me what happened to the revolution and where it is now, I suppose it's in individual desperados causing as much aggravation and trouble as they can — of screwing up in as many little ways as possible, because it's getting tighter and tighter to do that," he said.

Ellison also spoke about his view of American life today. "I've seen a lot of American people and talked to (them) and I try to listen as closely as I can in a brief period of time," he said. "And what I see is the invasion of the 'pod people.' We live in a time now of the sleep sickness, the 'Night of the Living Dead,' he added.

"This country is like America in the '50s. It is fully ripe for a guy like a Falwell, and all those other clowns on cable," Ellison explained, referring to the religious preachers on cable television.

For all the years of love.

Mother's Day is Sunday, May 8.

Give Mom an FTD 'Big Hug' Bouquet

In a Pfaltzgraff Stoneware Serving Dish.

$18.50 plus delivery

University Village Flowers

7127 Hollister Ave

968-1011

Send your love with special care.

Save money! Thousands and thousands of dollars to save, with coupons you can clip and save... or use right away!

For Beautiful Flowers and So Much More...
Rent

Demands for higher rents while building walls continue to crumble down is an all too common motif for most Isla Vista apartment dwellers. With rent prices rising an average of 15 percent over last year, and further increases in store for the immediate future, it is apparent that action must be taken to offset this continuing trend before students are priced out of their homes.

Apartment building owners attempt to justify these rent increases with a number of excuses such as utility costs, taxes—despite Proposition 13—and a general higher cost of living. The rate of increase is often handed to tenants by landlords, however, has not been in keeping with the local area’s rising cost of living. A hike in rent can be expected in most if not more of the buildings, yet the exorbitant price increases continually charged in I.V. are above and beyond what can be considered an acceptable rate.

The rising demand for housing in the Isla Vista-Santa Barbara area, coupled with management’s desire for increased profits, can be seen as a more accurate explanation behind the overpriced, unaffordable apartment syndrome. The continuing influx of greater numbers of people into a small area has created a market base which will support higher and higher prices as the competition for space increases.

Several options necessary to bring housing back to an affordable medium include rent control within the district, cooperative housing, and a more active role by the university in purchasing Isla Vista real estate.

Students cannot continue to shoulder an average 15 percent yearly increase in rent costs. Allowances are expected to offset rising costs of maintenance, but the general poor owners.

By freeing the faculty from such demands they are hampered in their available opportunity to conduct research necessary for tenure by providing paid work release time and other forms of economic assistance.

Many minorities and women junior faculty members are hampered in their available research time by extra demands imposed on them because of their unique position. It is not unusual to see a minority holding joint appointments in two separate departments thus creating doubly time consuming responsibilities. It is no secret common for a minority or woman to be more readily sought out by students as they may be one of the few or only faculty in that field.

By freeing the faculty from such demands and allowing them to concentrate solely on their research, both students and the university stand to gain. Students are not slighted by a too busy instructor trying to juggle a myriad of commitments, while the university not only promotes the cause of minorities and women but may use the AAFA program as a recruitment and developmental tool.

Affirmative Action

The creation of the Affirmative Action Faculty Award program here at UCSB can be seen as a much needed attempt to promote the position of minorities and women faculty within the university. The award program, now in its sixth year, gives recipients an opportunity to conduct research necessary for tenure by providing paid work release time and other forms of economic assistance.

Many minorities and women junior faculty members are hampered in their available research time by extra demands imposed on them because of their unique position. It is not unusual to see a minority holding joint appointments in two separate departments thus creating doubly time consuming responsibilities. It is no secret common for a minority or woman to be more readily sought out by students as they may be one of the few or only faculty in that field.

By freeing the faculty from such demands and allowing them to concentrate solely on their research, both students and the university stand to gain. Students are not slighted by a too busy instructor trying to juggle a myriad of commitments, while the university not only promotes the cause of minorities and women but may use the AAFA program as a recruitment and developmental tool.

Letters

Rent

Editor, Daily Nexus: Regarding President Reagan’s speech, begging students for more millions to aid El Salvador. How many of you remember how home was defended? In the 1930’s, when it was compared by barbarians. Look at how hard it is to stop the communists in El Salvador. Think how hard it would be to stop the huge masses of Mexican people, many of whom are already inside the United States, when they decide they have been shafted by the United States. Between Guatemala and the Gulf of Mexico is an extremely thin stretch of land which connects the Yucatan peninsula to Mexico. The Yucatan holds most of Mexico’s oil reserve. To start a revolution in this sector is to jeopardize Mexico’s financial future. The Yucatan is Mexico’s lifeline. I believe President Reagan wanted a roadway where a man is free to live out his dreams. Manifest destiny and all that. Let’s stop kidding ourselves; there are communists among us who want to take our freedom away from us and make us all the same, give us portions of treated services so we’ll never be hungry, and never be full. They want to take our destiny out of our hands. These same people see El Salvador as a means and opportunity to achieve their utopia, they see our liberal precedents and a weak Congress as tools of their drive for forced equality. I agree, the Latin Americans have been treated wrongly, and I think it is a mistake. However, the only way to close up the more we have created is to: 1) Draw the super fast flight from El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and from the Latin Institutes; 2) if necessary, a truly civilized, democratic government, in these countries, as well as poor as these, is necessary, a truly civilized, democratic government, in these countries, as well as poor as these, of these “new countries,” 3) fight against the standard living that we now enjoy. We are the change in our own freedom can survive if we fight to keep the United States the last obstacle to social uniformity.

John Finley

Crime

Editor, Daily Nexus: I have just committed a crime. I feel remorse. It was a crime against men, it was a crime against humanity. Perhaps it was a crime against all creation. My crime was not of the usual sort. No blood was drawn, no money was stolen, and unlike most crimes, many people are doing it all the time... more and more. It’s disgusting. I feel pain, and I am simply one more trapped in the ugly web. We do it to attract attention. We ceaselessly paint and print, tape and tack, staple and stamp our event and our name everywhere in the hopes that someone will come to attend. We want you to attend. The university could not care if you think it is accurate. According to the L.A. Times (4/3/83), “Faculty pay at UC is running 4 percent behind of that of other comparable public and private institutions in the United States and will drop more than 1.5 percent behind if substantial raises are not included in next year’s state budget.” Also, if the university wouldn’t hire so many faculty members, maybe they wouldn’t feel so responsible for them. The percentage of tenure faculty at UC is 81 percent, at Harvard, 39 percent. With this type of tenure system, where are we going to get new faculty members per year? Oh well, I hope they figure it all out, because it doesn’t make much sense to me.

John Finley

Letters

Freedom Housing

Editor, Daily Nexus: Isn’t it wonderful that UCSB is finally going to build at least single family units on the west campus for new UCSB faculty? I wonder though, if Bill Wallace, Donna Hone and Ed Manchke know about this? Someone should tell them, you know, with the water moratorium and all. I do hope they get a water hook-up; it would really be a shame to build all these nice new homes and not have any water.

I hope too, that no birds or animals are displaced from their homes. I mean after all, they’re people too, just like you and me! Maybe someone should go over there and find out if any birds or animals live there; I’m pretty sure there are some horses over there.

You know, the more I think about it, the more I wonder if this is such a good idea after all. Maybe if the university just raised their salaries, the faculty could do regular housing like the rest of us. According to the L.A. Times (4/3/83), “Faculty pay at UC is running 4 percent behind of that of other comparable public and private institutions in the United States and will drop more than 1.5 percent behind if substantial raises are not included in next year’s state budget.”

Joel Kruit

Rent

Editor, Daily Nexus: The creation of the Affirmative Action Faculty Award program here at UCSB can be seen as a much needed attempt to promote the position of minorities and women faculty within the university. The award program, now in its sixth year, gives recipients an opportunity to conduct research necessary for tenure by providing paid work release time and other forms of economic assistance.

Many minorities and women junior faculty members are hampered in their available research time by extra demands imposed on them because of their unique position. It is not unusual to see a minority holding joint appointments in two separate departments thus creating doubly time consuming responsibilities. It is no secret common for a minority or woman to be more readily sought out by students as they may be one of the few or only faculty in that field.

By freeing the faculty from such demands and allowing them to concentrate solely on their research, both students and the university stand to gain. Students are not slighted by a too busy instructor trying to juggle a myriad of commitments, while the university not only promotes the cause of minorities and women but may use the AAFA program as a recruitment and developmental tool.

The creation of the Affirmative Action Faculty Award program here at UCSB can be seen as a much needed attempt to promote the position of minorities and women faculty within the university. The award program, now in its sixth year, gives recipients an opportunity to conduct research necessary for tenure by providing paid work release time and other forms of economic assistance.

Many minorities and women junior faculty members are hampered in their available research time by extra demands imposed on them because of their unique position. It is not unusual to see a minority holding joint appointments in two separate departments thus creating doubly time consuming responsibilities. It is no secret common for a minority or woman to be more readily sought out by students as they may be one of the few or only faculty in that field.

By freeing the faculty from such demands and allowing them to concentrate solely on their research, both students and the university stand to gain. Students are not slighted by a too busy instructor trying to juggle a myriad of commitments, while the university not only promotes the cause of minorities and women but may use the AAFA program as a recruitment and developmental tool.

Affirmative Action

The creation of the Affirmative Action Faculty Award program here at UCSB can be seen as a much needed attempt to promote the position of minorities and women faculty within the university. The award program, now in its sixth year, gives recipients an opportunity to conduct research necessary for tenure by providing paid work release time and other forms of economic assistance.

Many minorities and women junior faculty members are hampered in their available research time by extra demands imposed on them because of their unique position. It is not unusual to see a minority holding joint appointments in two separate departments thus creating doubly time consuming responsibilities. It is no secret common for a minority or woman to be more readily sought out by students as they may be one of the few or only faculty in that field.

By freeing the faculty from such demands and allowing them to concentrate solely on their research, both students and the university stand to gain. Students are not slighted by a too busy instructor trying to juggle a myriad of commitments, while the university not only promotes the cause of minorities and women but may use the AAFA program as a recruitment and developmental tool.
This has been a bad year for spies. Every couple of days you read in the paper where they've caught some of our or worst. The President of the United States, just expelled if Soviet Embassy people because they said they wanted to go back home. And that's a lot to say.

It would be interesting to know what secrets all those Russian spies who are now in the United States that they'd have to get an awful lot of secrets to make worthwhile, because knowing of a secret formula, they'd have to say. I've eaten in Paris and I've eaten in Moscow, and if 47 of them are really spies, then we've been trying to steal the secret of French cooking.

Being a spy in Paris must be one of the most desirable jobs a man can have. The.MAIN is all right, and Europe, and the French, they have some of the best food in the world, and the French don't talk spies all that seriously. You probably could go to a party in Paris and discuss what you did without any one being surprised.

"What is your business, Mr. Standoffsky, if I may ask?"

"I'm in espionage, I spy for the Russian government."

"How interesting. You must meet so many fascinating people when you're away."

"True, and most of them are other spies."

Last week a Soviet citizen was apprehended (spies should be apprehended, not simply "caught") who was in the process of picking up some rolls of film from the trunk of a hollow tree in a forest near Moscow. He had to wait until the snow melted before he could get the film back to the Soviet Union. The country's got a lot of spies, but it could have happened completely frozen out of the spy business ever since the unfortunate demise of Mata Hari, but it could have happened.

There must be a lot of wasted effort in the spy business. Scientists working on new developments don't have any competition from the Soviet KGB. I can imagine a spy working for years to get hold of the plans for a new airplane, and the time he's got, the KGB already have it printed in Popular Mechanics. Or a spy might come running with his evidence to a spy boss, who thinks to himself, "What chemical only to discover that U.S. and Soviet scientists had exchanged that information at a meeting in Sweden three years ago.

Spies are having a tough time of it all right, and I wouldn't be surprised to see them organize and form a union, just as the workers in the same labor organization. Soviet spies would have to honor the picket lines. Any espionage union would probably make several demands of the U.S. government. They would demand that the right to be double agents, spies, like professional athletes, ought to have the right to become free agents after a certain length of time. Too, if the Russians have a really good spy, he should have the right to switch his allegiance if another country offers him more money.

An espionage union would certainly take up the matter of working conditions. Women seem to have been almost completely frozen out of the spy business ever since the unfortunate demise of Mata Hari, but it could have happened to anyone. Mata Hari just happened to be a woman.

I don't have a very high regard for spies, I think we should have more cooperation between countries in general way, but I don't think we need the blueprints for something we can all be proud of.

Forty years ago it would seem to me that President Kennedy, in his picketing of this labor organization, demonstrated that in foreign policy, the administration is made to cohere. Taken together, on the contrary, they demonstrate that in foreign policy, the administration is not making a coherent design. They are, indeed, notable for avoiding the basic point. The basic point is that the president is so out of touch with the various ministers. But to ignore the top is to miss the basic point. It is that the administration throws the president into the breach.

The Middle East, of course, presents a far different picture. Russia is close by and has troops on the spot in Egypt. Moscow has backed radical forces, including the governments of Syria and Iraq and the Palestinian Liberation Organization, in serious challenges to this country and its friends. Those challenges jeopardize the American interest in world peace, in oil, in a half a dozen of other countries, and in the welfare of Europe and Japan. An American set back in the Middle East is bound to be a Soviet gain.

So, lacking any good alternative, the administration throws the president into the breach.

Either President Reagan shouldn't be attending a joint session of Congress on Central America, or Secretary of State George Shultz shouldn't be visiting the Middle East at this time.

Both are to good way in which the two missions can be made to cohere. Taken together, on the contrary, they demonstrate that the administration is merely putting out fires.

Central America, for example, is far down on any list of priorities. The countries between Mexico and Panama are tiny in size and population, void of strategic materials and resources. But on United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick that the U.S. has a special interest in this area because it is a kind of gingham dress in the 1880s than the 1960s; gingham dresses aren't in vogue in punk clubs this year. For the moment, though, this gritty little long-continued to deliver the paper for a shot at $3 to $5 prizes and fewer radical forces.

Washington Post, raised editorial standards a bit, and fighting the right to free speech for the newspapers for their chemical warfare weapons.

Americans have been reading Grit for a long time. It has been very good spies. It's something we can all be proud of.

Andy Rooney is a syndicated columnist.

Joseph Kraft

President Reagan: Out of Touch

President Reagan: Out of Touch

Either President Reagan shouldn't be attending a joint session of Congress on Central America, or Secretary of State George Shultz shouldn't be visiting the Middle East at this time.

Both are to good way in which the two missions can be made to cohere. Taken together, on the contrary, they demonstrate that the administration is merely putting out fires.

Central America, for example, is far down on any list of priorities. The countries between Mexico and Panama are tiny in size and population, void of strategic materials and resources. But on United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick that the U.S. has a special interest in this area because it is a kind of gingham dress in the 1880s than the 1960s; gingham dresses aren't in vogue in punk clubs this year. For the moment, though, this gritty little long-continued to deliver the paper for a shot at $3 to $5 prizes and fewer radical forces.

Washington Post, raised editorial standards a bit, and fighting the right to free speech for the newspapers for their chemical warfare weapons.

Americans have been reading Grit for a long time. It has been very good spies. It's something we can all be proud of.

Andy Rooney is a syndicated columnist.

President Reagan: Out of Touch

President Reagan: Out of Touch

Either President Reagan shouldn't be attending a joint session of Congress on Central America, or Secretary of State George Shultz shouldn't be visiting the Middle East at this time.

Both are to good way in which the two missions can be made to cohere. Taken together, on the contrary, they demonstrate that the administration is merely putting out fires.

Central America, for example, is far down on any list of priorities. The countries between Mexico and Panama are tiny in size and population, void of strategic materials and resources. But on United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick that the U.S. has a special interest in this area because it is a kind of gingham dress in the 1880s than the 1960s; gingham dresses aren't in vogue in punk clubs this year. For the moment, though, this gritty little long-continued to deliver the paper for a shot at $3 to $5 prizes and fewer radical forces.

Washington Post, raised editorial standards a bit, and fighting the right to free speech for the newspapers for their chemical warfare weapons.

Americans have been reading Grit for a long time. It has been very good spies. It's something we can all be proud of.

Andy Rooney is a syndicated columnist.
CORRECTION
In the Thursday, April 28 issue of the Daily Nexus, The Kirks Auto Parts ad on page 7 should have had an expiration date. This Free Offer expired April 30, 1983. We are sorry for any inconvenience this may have caused.

DINA KVRKIAIKOOU
Nexxus Staff Writer
The kids are so exciting; they give you so much love," Margie Rosenberg, UCSB Community Affairs Board project leader for the Special Olympics, said of the games which took place Saturday at San Marcos High School.

"It was really fun, everyone was happy it didn't rain," Rosenberg said.

The athletes, retarded children of eight years or older, "have been training for a long time and they were really excited about this," Anita Watt, a volunteer from the City of Santa Barbara Recreation Department, said. The athletes train at their schools with the help of a

S.B. Special Olympics Called 'Really Fun' For Retarded Children

The charge of the SAO is to provide assistance for students who wish to find a solution for grievances they have with members of the university community. Students desiring assistance before or during a disciplinary hearing may also be members of the university community. Students desiring assistance before or during a disciplinary hearing may also be

MISSION'S ARCHIVE-LIBRARY
Houses Historical Artifacts

By RAY BORST
Nexxus Staff Writer

Acting as the repository for artifacts of all 21 California Missions, the Santa Barbara Mission Archive-Library, houses the historical materials dating back to 1769, when the Spaniards, Indians and soldiers inhabited this territory.

The archive contains many rare items including books, manuscripts, photographs, paintings and historical artifacts. Virgilio Biasiol, OFM, director of the mission, described the contents as "documents important, for the history of the state."

Pater Ampero here also brought Spanish historical documents and materials with him when he traveled to California to establish the missions. These too have been placed in the archives, Biasiol said. For research interested in history or genealogy of California, the Santa Barbara Mission is a vital stop, Biasiol explained.

As the mission established throughout the state, towns sprouted up around them. With the mission's development, there was the creation of many files and materials. Biasiol said the archives contain records of the births, marriages, and deaths of the Indians which the Padres were attempting to convert to Christianity.

The missionaries came to California, they brought their Latin Spanish history with them. As Biasiol said, any part of the world that was part of the Spanish empire, south America to the Philippines has documentation in the Mission Archive-Library.

Pat Pung, who works at the mission cataloging the books and records when she is not working at the UCSB Library, said, "The Padres had to be versatile. They had to be able to build, use medicines, all in a new land, so they put all their books. This contributes to the historical records older then the mission itself."

According to Biasiol, the mission holds records and books on the North American Indians including the Chumash, Sioux and Navajo. There also is a large quantity of history on Santa Barbara's own Chumash Indians. Biasiol said these records are very important and the Padres are trying to keep them.

The archives also hold a large collection of documents relating to California's Hispanic past, Pung said. In 1968, the mission received a major collection of documents, Biasiol said, "The De La Guerra family is famous in Santa Barbara, with a mayor and an ancestor family."

Biasiol said the S.B. Mission Archive-Library "probably the oldest archive in the state of California." It may also be the most complete.

The archive-library exists as a key repository for much material pertaining to the history of the state and of the missions themselves. Biasiol said that it is a repository for the research materials of scholars in the field of California mission studies, and materials used to write the books of California historians Edith Becklund and Robert S. Smiley are also there. The archives hold old maps and precious collection. This physical and digital collection is a major resource to Santa Barbara and the (Please turn to pg.7, col.1)
S.B. Chapter Of United Nations
Educates Public

By CHRISTOPHER CARSON BECKER
Nexus Staff Writer

The Santa Barbara chapter of the United Nations Association of Santa Barbara is dedicated to "educating the public on the charter, ideals, objectives and accomplishments of the United Nations," according to Constance deSantillana, an original member of the local affiliation.

The local chapter was started during World War II when a group of people in Santa Barbara organized a war relief program which sent care packages to the American soldiers in Britain. After the war, this group decided to promote their international awareness and founded the Santa Barbara chapter of the UNA in 1946, because they felt that the United Nations "was the savior of the world," according to deSantillana.

She noted that the U.N. has been criticized for political inefficacities, but their agencies should be taken into considerable account for their success. UNICEF, the World Health Organization, and the Food and Agriculture Organization were all initiated by the U.N. United Nations "is the savior of the world," according to deSantillana.

The Santa Barbara UNA is also involved with the model United Nations organizations that support U.N. ideals. The American Friends Service Committee, the anti-nuclear groups, and the anti-war organizations are some of them. They must be the framework of the Unites Nations," deSantillana explained.

The Santa Barbara UNA also sponsored the "Peace Education" movement of the Framed California "welcome to their agencies should be accounted for their success. UNICEF is known around the world, " according to deSantillana. "High school students, according to Janecki, the U.S. must be an active country or else the U.N. might disband. She cited the League of Nations which formed after World War I but soon fell apart after Congress' refusal of U.S. membership.

The arms race will also be discussed at the convention. Although the U.N. is a non-political entity, it supports a bilateral nuclear weapons freeze, according to Janecki.

The last issue will focus on the "law of the sea," which is an ongoing concern of the U.N. The law of the Sea is a proposed law aimed at controlling exploitation of minerals on sea beds and establishing territorial and fishing rights. With the Reagan administration's refusal to ratify the proposal, the convention "open to gather more support in its favor. The Santa Barbara UNA is run completely by volunteers. Volunteer Katherine Rollins explained that they are in need of "people who are willing to give some of their time and who are also interested in the United Nations." She said the group varies, depending on how devoted their volunteers are. They (Please turn to pg. col.l) were also five deaf children according to Wood. There then returns a portion of it back to the local chapters. According to deSantillana.
Tenure...

(Continued from front page)

...from the campers, the percentage of funds coming from 1983.

Camp...

(Continued from front page)

percent Indochinese, according to Wood. There were also five deaf children and one child with cerebral palsy.

not all of the participants come for tenure review, but of the ones who have, only one has failed to be promoted. We consider that to be a very successful track record," Huerta said.

United Nations Edcates...

(Continued from pg. 7)

they are in need of funds and presently can not afford an executive secretary.

are need of funds and presently can not afford an executive secretary.

time, became aware of the Church's activities and lost support to UNA. Storke effectively preserved the UNA's reputation as an organization based on the desire for peace and world peace, and in addition won the 1962 Pulitzer Prize for his exposure of the John Birch Society and "how our small town met its menace," defaltants said.

United Nations Edcates...

I speak Arabic. Arabs from the Arabian Peninsular conquered Palestine in 637 AD at that time Palestine was a Byzantine province. Since then Arabs from many countries have settled in Palestine. Arab tribes and families are need of funds and presently can not afford an executive secretary.

I speak Arabic. Arabs from the Arabian Peninsular conquered Palestine in 637 AD at that time Palestine was a Byzantine province. Since then Arabs from many countries have settled in Palestine. Arab tribes and families have sent to the UNAUSA who then returns a portion of it back to the local chapters. According to deSantillana, comes from various Santa Barbara foundations and churches, although this does not cover all expenses. The remaining difference is made up through private donations.

Wood explained that last year the camp could only afford to run for three weeks, instead of the usual four. "We usually have enough campers to run the camp for six weeks, but normally we only afford four," she said.

The camp was originally started as a project of the Interdenominational Camp of Santa Barbara, Inc. The ICD then rents the 5-acre camp to Adventure Camps for the month of July. The "I Please turn on pg. 12, ed."
Waves Wash Away Gaucho’s NCAA Championship Hopes With Four Set Victory at Western Regionals

By BARRY EBERLING

The current Volleyball News cover asks, “Is this the year of the Gauchos?”. Pepperdine answered with a resounding “no” in the CIVA regional finals at Loyola Marymount Saturday night. The Waves beat UCSB in four games to earn a berth in the NCAA Final Four.

“We played real well,” Pepperdine coach Mary Dunphy said afterwards. The Gauchos, on the other hand, were erratic even during their first round win over Cal State Fullerton. The Gauchos, while first team selection Storke added 12. McLaughlin was also a driving force for the Waves. He had 14 kills.

Meanwhile, UCSB setter Mike Gorman shook hands and wished a returning player good luck next year. He is one of six UCSB seniors who played in their last collegiate match.

“I think that’s the most disappointing thing,” he said. “I’ll never be able to do this again. I’m sure I’m going to be kind of sad when that hits me.”

Randy Ittner predicted that Pepperdine will beat UCLA if the teams meet in the finals. “Their blocking was great and their passing was great,” he said. “They are on a roll right now.”

The All-CIVA teams were announced before the players left the court. Two choices — Pepperdine’s Jeff Storke and Sam Breger — were all too familiar to UCSB. Second team pick Breger had a match high 19 kills against the Gauchos, while first team selection Storke added 12.

Dunphy hopes Pepperdine’s momentum helps them take care of the unfinished business he says they have in store for the Gauchos. “My heart goes out to Ken Preston; he’s my good buddy,” Dunphy said. “UCSB is easily among the top four teams of the nation. It’s just the nature of the Final Four to take teams from different regions.”

Pepperdine was also impressive on Friday night when it dumped Hawaii in four games. The Gauchos, meanwhile, were extended to the limit by Long Beach in a match full of both mistakes and brilliant plays.

Certainly UCSB didn’t win because of any statistical outshine. The Gauchos were outscored by Long Beach, 70- 60, overall; 129-131, out-pointed, 367 to 352; and even out-errored, 36-31.

But, as Preston said later, UCSB made the big plays. The first game set the tone for the evening. It was a 25 minute affair that saw UCSB grab a big lead and almost blow it. The Gauchos eventually pulled out a 15-13 win. They then proceeded to collapse. Their 15-15 defeat made their reputation of hiding in regions seem warranted.

UCSB rewrite the script this time. It pulled out a 17-15 victory in game four to keep alive. Joel Jones served for the final two points.

“Just trying to get the ball in,” he said. “The pressure was on them at match point. I wanted to get it in and let them make the mistake.”

“The fourth game was the key,” he added. UCSB still had a struggle ahead, though. The Gauchos fell behind in the fifth set and had to rally for a 15-2 victory.

Besides his crucial serves, Jones had a team high 23 kills, and a percentage of .460. Randy Ittner and Joerg Lorscheider both had 25 kills; and Mike Gorman added 26. Lorscheider had also 9 block solos.

Cal Long Beach wasn’t without its standouts. Bob Crittuck and Mike布莱 had both had match highs 33 kills; and Greg Maxwell added 24.

Ittner thinks the Gauchos will be heard from again next year despite the graduation of UCSB’s key players. "We’ll be fired up," he said. "No one will expect anything, so there won’t be as much pressure on us. We’ll just go out, have fun, and win.”

As for the ‘83-84 season — well, it’s a wrap now.

(Comments to be filed for 11/4, col.1.)

STANLEY H. KAPLAN

PREPARE FOR

MCAT-LSAT-GMAT
SAT-ACT-DAT-GRE-CPA

FREE LEGAL SERVICES

Isla Vista Legal Clinic
970 Emb. del Mar #1
a non-profit corporation

Landlord/Tenant, Consumer & Criminal Law
Call 968-9794 for Appointment
Hours M-F 9-5, M-W 6-8pm

This service is sponsored by A.S.

ES 180
April 20

* Pay fees will have out questions take home this is the midterm

Outline

1. Periods of Occupation
2. History of Native Americans
A. Prehistoric Stage
B. Classical Stage
3. Spanish Conquest and Colonial Stage
4. Spanish Influence on Native Americans
5. Mexican Influence

Notes:

1. Historical Overview of California
2. Progressive Era (1870-1910)
3. Industrial Revolution
4. California Today

Free Notetaking Service

Open 10 4

A.S. Notetaking Service

All BACK NOTES ARE AVAILABLE WITH SUBSCRIPTION PURCHASE.
INDIVIDUAL LECTURES ARE ALSO AVAILABLE ON A DAILY BASIS. LET THE A.S. NOTETAKING SERVICE HELP YOU CATCH ALL THE POINTS IN LECTURE.
The Gauchos tried every angle to beat Pepperdine, but came up on the short end.

Stretch Lead In SCBA

Gauchos Take Four From San Diego

By GARY MIGGIO
Nexus Sports Editor

Will good things ever cease?

The Gauchos took another giant step toward a Southern California Baseball Association championship this weekend when they swept a four-game series from the University of San Diego to remain in first place in the SCBA weekend when they swept a four-game series from the University of San Diego to remain in first place in the SCBA

The Gauchos ahead 4-3, right fielder Kent McBride hit UCSB's towering drive well over the left-center field fence that gave UCSB an 8-3 lead.

In the nightcap, Clark's third home run of the day put the Gauchos ahead 9-4, as he notched his fifth win of the season against just 132.174.249.166 on Mon, 16 Oct 2023 23:12:41 +00:00 All use subject to https://about.jstor.org/terms
Author Presents Views...

Ellison believes part of the reason for the change of the "common man" is the change of the "common man." He explains metaphorically, "is no longer a Jimmy Stewart or Henry Fonda (stapping the Lynch mob). The common man is the one that forms the Lynch mob; the common man is the one that stops the Lynch mob."

"I have learned directly about books. "Books are a wonderful thing."

"The book is the most powerful union."

"The whole idea of the contest is to inspire reading," said Ellison. "Do it yourself. All you need is a brain and a little imagination," Ellison added.

Ellison also described his feelings about writing. "(Writing) is a serious business; it's hard to do it well," he said. "But we are not talking about the kind of nonsense that wins up highly hyped by publishers," he explained. "(Writing) takes a lot of very straight and clear thinking no matter how internally integral, internal logic—there has got to be craft behind it."

"According to Ellison his own writing is "more influenced oddly enough by music and art than by writers. I will look at a painting by Varech and feel I'll see 36 stories there."

The contest is sponsored by Mrs. Corle in memory of her husband, a novelist and book collector.